C & T post may be filled by August 1

by Samantha J. Griffin
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

The Counseling and Testing Center may have a permanent coordinator by the first week of August, after a temporary coordinator filled the position for over a year.

Ellen Bolves has temporarily filled the position since February 1986.

Conflict arose when the center wanted to hire Bolves instead of another candidate considered more qualified by UCF's Equal Opportunity Office.

The position reopened and a screening committee was set up to help decide the issue.

Members of the committee include:

- Debra Kusma, Counseling and Testing counselor
- Olga Garcia, peer advisor
- Dennis Kamrad, director of Liberal Studies

- Judith McGunagle, coordinator of testing

- Mary McKinney, associate director of Financial Aid

The committee has narrowed the number of candidates down to four, one of whom is Bolves.

According to Equal Opportunity director Janet P. Balanoff, "The committee had a number of folders to screen that were done by the last committee."

The committee will recommend at least three candidates to Robert Harmon, director of Counseling and Testing.

"We may know the first week of August who his choice is," Balanoff said.

"I'm very proud of the job the committee has done.

"They have given everyone a fair shake. It could have been very personal and it wasn't."

SORORITY SPOT

Delta Delta Delta sorority is breaking ground on their new sorority house, to be located next to the Zeta Tau Alpha house by Lake Claire. The building will house 22 Tri Deltas and should be ready by next January. Zeta Tau Alpha house was the first house to be built on the Greek Park site.

Tax reform affects tuition saving

Staff Report
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

The statistics are almost frightening. By the year 2000, it will cost $90,000 to $140,000 for a four-year college education. Also, the average cost of $10,200 a year for a private college education is expected to increase at a rate of six to seven percent a year. What's a parent to do?

The Florida Institute of CPAs cautions parents who have begun a college savings program to re-examine their savings strategies in light of the Tax Reform Act of 1986. For those who have not yet begun a college savings plan, CPAs say it's never too early to start.

Tax reform has virtually eliminated the tax advantages of the two most popular college savings vehicles—custodial accounts set up under the Uniform Gifts to Minors Act, and the Clifford Trust which allowed assets to be set aside in a child's name for a minimum of ten years during which the earnings were taxed at the child's lower rates.

While one may still open a custodial account or a Clifford Trust, it may be less beneficial under tax reform, since any unearned income over $1,000 received by a child is taxed at the parent's higher marginal tax rate until the child reaches age 14. When a child is 14 or older, his or her earnings will be taxed at the child's rate.

—Florida Institute of CPAs

Given the new rules, CPAs suggest that if one has a child under the age of 14, plan his or her investments carefully so that the annual investment generates approximately $1,000 to take advantage of the exclusion available to the child. For any additional funds invested in your child's name, consider plans that defer taxable income until the child reaches age 14 and can take advantage of a potentially lower tax bracket.

New Judaic Studies programs

Staff Report
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Courses in elementary Hebrew, Jewish history, and Hebrew literature of the 1881-1914 National Renaissance will be offered for the first time this fall at UCF.

No prior knowledge of Hebrew or the Hebrew alphabet is required in the language course, which will meet at noon each weekday but Thursday. The history course will meet at 1 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The literature course, in translation, will meet at 3 p.m. each Wednesday.

Judaic Studies is an interdisciplinary program in the UCF Department of Foreign Languages. Those students who complete five courses are eligible for a certificate attesting to the fact.

Members of the community may take the courses as non-degree students or may audit courses.

Registration for such students is held the first day of class.

For more information on class times and dates, call Dr. Moshe Pelli at 281-5039.

East-West underway

Staff Report
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Construction crews were gearing up for the first leg of the north section of the Eastern Beltway as the Orlando-Orange County Expressway Authority got down to the serious business of building the biggest project in Central Florida since Epcot Center.

Following the July 15 groundbreaking by Gov. Bob Martinez, authority Chairman Phil Reece thanked the hundreds of citizens, civic leaders and businessmen who turned out for the event. The ceremony took place at the new interchange to be built at State Road 50 at the current end of the East-West Expressway.

The Northwest Beltway section is the first link in the Orlando-Orange County Expressway Authority's $433 million road building program. The $89 million, 5.8 mile section from the East-West Expressway to State Road 426 should be open to motorists in January 1989.

The Orlando-Orange County Expressway Authority is building 26 miles of limited access expressways which will open to traffic by 1990.

In addition to the North Section of the Eastern Beltway, the Orlando-Orange County Expressway Authority will build the Southeast Beltway, which will link to the Bee Line Expressway near Orlando International Airport at a cost of $104 million. The latter is to open in July of 1990 and will give drivers in all sections of Orange and Seminole Counties an alternative to heavily travelled State Road 436 in going to the airport.

Also in the current fast-track building program are the Eastern Extension of the East-West Expressway, $106 million, opening April, 1989; and the Western Extension of the East-West Expressway, $104 million, which opens October, 1990.

DUCKIN' THE RAIN

Rob Conrad ducks the rain between classes during a recent thunder shower behind the Administration Building. The weather for the next few days should be a bit dry with the obligatory chance of scattered afternoon showers.

News clips

■ HELP FOR HOUSING

The Off-Campus Housing Coordinator, located in the Housing Office, is available to help students find apartments and roommates. An "Off-Campus Housing" guide is also available.

The guide includes information on 25 apartment complexes that are within walking/biking distance of campus. In addition, files are maintained for students seeking roommates and/or accommodations. For more information call 275-2171.

■ PUBLICATIONS DIRECTOR

Mindy Z. Colton has been appointed to the new post of publications director at UCF.

She has worked in advertising and public relations in Orlando since moving from Atlanta 18 months ago. She has a BFA degree from Washington University, St. Louis.

■ SPEECH PATHOLOGISTS

The UCF Department of Communicative Disorders encourages students to consider a career as a speech pathologists. The Florida Department of Education reports 200 unfilled positions in the state's public schools.

Also, positions exist in the health care and private practice sectors of the speech pathology profession. Now is the time to consider getting in on a growing health care profession. For more information call 275-2121.

■ FREE TUTORING

The Student Academic Resource Center is open year-round from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Monday through Friday to assist students with academic problems. Free individualized tutorial help is offered to students on a variety of subjects. The center is also available to students for quiet study during regular hours. For further information call 281-5130.

■ TEACHER WORKSHOP

Making music a vital part of children's lives is the focus of a week-long August workshop at UCF.

The sessions, starting Aug. 10, will be devoted to ways of developing music skills in children ages 3 to 9, and how to integrate music into the classroom.

■ WEIGHT WATCHERS

The UCF Weight Watchers meet every Thursday at noon in the Health Resource Center conference room. This Thursday is a free open house to meet counselor Ed Forrestall. The next regular eight-week session begins Aug. 6. Registration for new members is $70 for eight weeks, and $56 for returning members.

WE WANT YOU

The Central Florida Future is hiring students in all areas of newspaper production. We're looking for enthusiastic people who want to get involved with UCF. If you are interested in writing, editing, photography, advertising sales or production, have we got a deal for you! Why, we even pay our employees.

No experience is necessary

Stop by our offices, located next to the Health Center, today.
Or call 275-2865.

The Central Florida Future

"We offer experience"

Are you looking to get involved this fall? Give us a try

It's finally here. For all of us who have been busily attending classes, the next few weeks will represent the closest thing to summer vacation that we will get.

Not so surprisingly, The Central Florida Future will also be on vacation. However, look for us to hit the stands on the very first Tuesday of the fall term.

Remember, we'll be publishing twice a week again then. That's Tuesdays and Thursdays, if you forgot.

More importantly, keep an eye out for this year's Student Survival Guide. Like its predecessors, the guide will be filled with information on all sorts of things including campus sports, campus and area maps, apartment maps and a bunch of stories aimed at helping students cope with beginning-of-the-year problems.

The Survival Guide will be published in the first two issues of the Fall semester, so check it out.

Sounds kind of like an advertisement, doesn't it? So, while we're on that track let's try another one.

Have you ever thought about getting more involved on campus? Have you ever longed to be in an organization that would allow you to meet campus and community leaders on a day-to-day basis? Have you ever hoped for all of this with pay?

Well if you have, we hope you find it. In the mean time you might try working for The Central Florida Future.

Seriously, though, working at The Central Florida Future can be everything mentioned above. In fact, we've had writers do some really exciting assignments. How does flying to Hollywood to interview Tom Cruise sound? Or maybe William Shatner? Or is Molly Ringwald more your speed. Yes, we had reporters go to California to do those assignments.

If all of this sounds interesting, we're planning our fall workshop and we would love to have anyone interested in working for us attend.

By the way, if you write, draw or are a salesperson we can probably use your abilities. Do you have a great knowledge of the Macintosh computer? We can definitely use your abilities.

But what do you do to get involved? It's easy, either stop by our offices (located next to Health Center) and fill out an application or just give us a call (275-2865) and leave your name, address and phone number and we'll be happy to fill you in on the rest.

The workshop will be held on Aug. 15 and 16 so if you're interested leave those dates open.

That's it. Have a great summer and we'll see you in the fall!

The people say, "Save our PTZs!"

Well what do you know. They actually let my out of my cage to write a column this week. And wouldn't you know we have some old business to catch up on...

Several weeks ago I asked for readers' opinions about the idea of plopping a flower garden on top of the prime tanning zone between the Library and the reflecting pond. As far as this slimy snooper can determine, plans are still underway to proceed with the silly idea.

But what does Joe Student have to say about the whole thing? A sampling of responses to the survey reveals:

- The vast majority of students opposes the flower garden. And for one reason—the planned location. Many suggested relocating the project along Alafaya Trail where it would be more visible to the public.

Observed one insightful reader, "The reflecting pond is for people to look at and reflect upon. Have you ever seen flowers reflect?"

- Several people took issue with the tagging of the real estate in question as a "prime tanning zone." One reader called preferred "mating ground."

TIM BALL

The other side of nowhere

Alafaya update: Two weeks ago I got real upset about the lack of lighting along Alafaya Trail. But my anger was little more than complaining on my part. I took no action to try and solve the problem.

Enter Gail Kendall, a student who has decided to do something about the rape trap we call Alafaya Trail. Gail has written to several officials who, in one way or another, have the power to do something about the Trail.

If you really are interested in leaning on a bureaucrat or two, then get ready to write a letter. First, write to Ben Watts of the Florida Department of Transportation at P.O. Box 47, Deland, Fla., 32721. He's aware of the problem.

Let's make sure he doesn't forget.

If only my girlfriend were here...

CHRIS RICHCREEK

Future world

Hey, all you hypochondriacs out there, have I got the thing for you!

Do you want to have a sure-fire way to contract an injury?

Have your girlfriend (or boyfriend, depending on your sex and/or sexual preference) leave town for two weeks.

Mine has, and all hell has broken loose. The night she left, I sprained my ankle playing basketball. All the sympathy I normally could have received for that type of injury was on its way to Wisconsin at the time.

So, for two days the most excitement I had was devising new and different ways of elevating my foot while keeping an ice bag on the ankle at the same time. That didn't work, because as soon as I would find a comfortable position, I would doze off, the ice would melt, the water would run down my leg, and for a while I would wake up and wonder why I was wetting the bed.

I escaped that major catastrophe, only to find an angry wasp that had a score to settle on Monday. Evidently, someone on the tennis courts had hit the wasp with the ball. And naturally, the wasp went after the first person it could find. And yes, guess whose girlfriend was still up in cheese country?

Well, the people at the Health Center were really helpful, and for that I thank them. They didn't have a remedy for the overall problem, though.

Suffice to say, if she doesn't get home soon, there may not be anything left to come back to. I can already hear Orlando General's intensive care unit calling my name.

Tie 'em up: Speaking of basketball, I read an article in the Florida Flambeau recently about basketball shoes. It seems that some companies, in particular Adidas, still use kangaroo hide for making the footwear.

Pretty raunch, eh mate?

Well, leave it to us of the sick mind to think of an alternative. Why not use the skins of dead human beings to make the ever-popular hightop shoes? For one, you'll have a surplus of bodies that aren't using their skin after they die. All you have to do is dry the skin out the right way, and it could be comparable to full-grain leather. People could sign cards, like the current organ donor cards, for donating their skin to the shoe company of their choice. Or, if money is the name of the game, the surviving family members could be reimbursed for the skin of dear old dad or Uncle Fred. So instead of killing innocent kangaroos who hop around minding their own business, you'll be taking something from someone who is dead and couldn't take it with him anyway.

By the way, to dispel a common fallacy, just because your shoes are made from kangaroos doesn't mean you'll jump any higher.

...and finally: For those of you brave enough to hang around for summer B, congrats on wrapping up your semester. Have one (or three) for me, and remember, you have until Aug. 24 before you even have to see this place again. Of course, if you just failed that important class, you may have a much longer time.

See ya' in the fall.

Fall golf schedule ends with Rollins

Staff Report
CENTRAL FLORIDA FUTURE

Knight's golf coach Dale Wilson has announced the men's fall schedule.

The season will begin with the Tampa Paradise Island Collegiate Tournament to be held Sept. 10 through Sept. 13. The tourney will be held at Paradise Country Club in Nassau, Fla.

Oct. 2 is the beginning of the second tourney for the Knights. The Stetson Invitational, to be played at the Indigo Lakes Country Club in Daytona Beach, will last until the sixth.

November will be the busy month for UCF as they play in three tournaments. The Florida Intercollegiate at Pelican Bay Country Club in Daytona Beach will be the first.

On Nov. 14, the Knights will travel to Miami for the Florida Institute of Technology Sun and Fun Collegiate for a four-day match.

The final test for UCF will be at Hunter's Creek Country Club here in Orlando. On the 24th, the Rollins Citrus Bowl-Invitational will begin.

Classic b-ball team in the game for fun of it

by Chad Salinas
SPORTS EDITOR

"Coke and a smile."

So part of the famous saying goes. This slogan brings a sense of calmness and relaxation. It also brings back memory of some exciting, action-filled commercials from the Coca-Cola Company.

How appropriate a motto, then, for a basketball team that scored 105 points a game in the recent Sunshine State Games. More importantly, though, is that they had a fun time doing it.

Meet Coke Classic. Classic is a women's basketball team put together by former Lady Knight guard Bev Knight.

Knight, acting as coach/manager/financial adviser/public relations person, reunited five former Knights and four players from last year's squad. Kristy Burns, Christine Strahl, Susan Pringle (formerly Patz), Dorine VanTongeren and Marcie Swilley were teammates who played under the tutelage of former coach Joe Sanchez. These five joined four players from the Nancy Little era in Julie Cardinale, Sherry Asplen, DeAnn Craft and Fayette Robinson. The last two also played for Sanchez.

Former Lady Knights Kristy Burns (left) and DeAnn Craft were two of nine Lady Knights to compete for the Coke Classic basketball team. The team finished with a 6-2 record and took the top spot in the Orlando Sports Festival.

Knight was the mastermind behind the whole team. However, without the help of Pat and Willard Carlisle or the Coca-Cola Company, it may not have gotten off the ground. Coca-Cola, thanks to the work of Pringle, decided to sponsor the ladies. The company gave them T-shirts, socks and shorts, as well as a little funding. The Carlises also helped by providing some of the registration fees along the way.

With the team on its way, VanTongeren was flown up from Miami to play, while Swilley came over from Titusville. Soon after, the two-a-week practices began.

Practices, though, were not the run-till-you-drop kind. Instead, they were fun. According to Strahl, "Most of the times it was pick-up games. The only restriction was that Susan and I had to be on different teams."

Craft added that they worked hard during practice, but still had a good time.

The team was put together early in the season to gear up for the games. However, unlike most college teams heading for a big tourney, Classic was virtually pressure-free.

"Sure we wanted to win," former center Strahl comments, "but the important thing was that we had fun. It was great knowing that there was no pressure on you whatsoever."

Partially due to the lack of pressure and load of fun, Coke Classic was a very successful team. In the three tournaments they entered, they came away with a six and two record. Besides a tourney in Jacksonville, Classic won the Orlando Sports Festival and was one of the top two teams in the recent Sunshine State Games. They finished their "season" with a trophy, medals, T-shirts, and Gatorade squirt bottles, which were Strahl's favorite.

Their game plan was simple; go out and have a good time. In other words, shoot the ball. Classic's classic run-and-gun game averaged about 105 points per outing. Isn't it amazing what a little fun can do to a team?

Strahl commented, "Everybody knew that we were going to shoot quickly. I just went down and got in position for a rebound. The three-point shot was also great. We could be down, but then Kristy would bury a couple. We'd be back in the game."

The bottom line, however, was the fun. Former guard Craft admits, "It was the best time I had all year. It was really fantastic. It was great reliving the past."

Knight says, "All we wanted to do was have fun. Getting together and playing was the best part. Winning made it better."

Oh, that wacky French bike race

Maybe it should be called "Tour de France and Part of Germany"

Well, with this being the final issue of the summer, we are going to take a look at the recent sports world, and try to write about nothing in particular.

Premierement, nous allons parler de velo:

(That means, let us talk about bikes.) Specifically, the Tour de France. Now, the Tour had many surprises. First, the fact that it started in Germany startled and upset many French.

Why, you ask. Well, my guess was that some bigwigs in Germany offered a great amount of money for it. Apparently, it was big enough for the race officials to part with years of tradition and go with it. The Tour de France and Part of Germany??? I don't think it works.

Also, who thought that last year's winner, American Greg Lemond, would not be back to defend his crown due to a hunting accident? He got his back full of buckshot on a hunting trip. Wild, huh? He may be great at biking, but it seems he is even better at camouflaging himself.

Thirdly, another native English speaker won the prestigious race. Ireland's Stephen Roche became the first Irish and second English-speaking person to win. He won by a mere 40 seconds over Spaniard Pedro Delgado. Actually, it is not surprising that he did so well. He was in the top 10 for the past two years, as was Delgado.

USA's Andy Hampsten was a disappointing 16th. Okay, that is not too shabby, but he finished fourth last year. However, he followed his heart and changed teams for this season. Last summer, he was riding with Lemond and runner-up and five-time champion Bernard Hinault. What a team.

This time, he was with the 7-11 team. Yes, that is right. 7-11. With a mostly American team, he wasn't supported enough to win. His highest placing was sixth. Vive la France.

Take me out to the ball game...:

After 100 games, my Baltimore Orioles are finally coming around. It is a little too late though. I mean they won 10 in a row after the All-Star Break. But we finally lost to the Royals.

Last season, we were in second place, 2 1/2 games out of first. After the All-Star Game, we won 14 games and lost 60 or so. We already have won more in two weeks than we did in all of last August.

CHAD SALINAS

From the sidelines

That is all right, though. I am confident that we will keep on winning and eventually pass the Bosox for fifth place. Our only problem is pitching. The hitting is usually there, but we give up too many runs. But, I have the solution. Cancel every fourth and fifth game. That way Ken Dixon and Scott McGregor will not have to pitch.

After 100 games, though, my friend's Indians are still looking for answers. But my buddy, always the answer-man, has found a great way for them to win. Always play K.C. while Bret Saberhagen is pitching. Cleveland is 2-0 against him, which is good for them. Actually, it is good for them to be 2-0 against anybody.

If that doesn't work, they could join the West. NFC West, that is. They could probably beat the Falcons and the Saints in a nine-inning game. Then again...

Thirty-fourty...:

Well, now that the U.S. is out of the Davis Cup, look for Sweden or Australia to win. Sure, West Germany has Becker, but he is not enough to carry a nation. Look, we had McEnroe.

The Swedes have Mats Wilander, Stefan Edberg, Kent Carlsson and, I believe, Anders Jarryd. Wilander and Edberg alone are enough. They also eliminated France, another top five team.

The Aussies have Wimbledon winner Pat Cash, the best volleyer in the world. They also have, mate, a very good doubles team in Peter Doohan and Wally Masur. Who is Doohan, you ask? Ask Becker, who lost to Doohan at Wimbledon. Who is Masur? I don't really know, but he sounds good.

Well, I guess that should do it for now. I am sorry I could not do more, but my Sumo Wrestling Weekly,
